

“My great mistake, the fault for which I can’t forgive myself, is that one day I ceased my obstinate pursuit of my own individuality.”

(A lesson in life from Oscar Wilde, 1854-1900, Irish playwright, poet and humorist. Every person has a special value. Discover yours and follow it.)