

“My great mistake, the fault for which I can’t forgive myself, is that one day I ceased my obstinate pursuit of my own individuality.”

(Oscar Wilde, 1854-1900, Irish playwright, poet and humorist.)